

Immigrants in Oregon

Oregon has a sizeable community of immigrants, many hailing from Mexico. One out of every ten Oregon residents is foreign-born, while one in nine residents is a native-born American who has at least one immigrant parent. More than two-fifths of Oregon's farmers, fishers, and foresters are immigrants, as are over one-fifth of all production employees. As neighbors, business owners, taxpayers, and workers, immigrants are an integral part of Oregon's diverse and thriving communities and make extensive contributions that benefit all.

One in ten Oregon residents is an immigrant, while one in nine residents is a native-born U.S. citizen with at least one immigrant parent.

- In 2018, 432,410 immigrants (foreign-born individuals) comprised 10 percent of the population.¹
- Oregon was home to 208,338 women, 199,905 men, and 24,167 children who were immigrants.²
- The top countries of origin for immigrants were Mexico (36 percent of immigrants), Vietnam (6 percent), China (5 percent), India (5 percent), and the Philippines (4 percent).³
- In 2018, 459,872 people in Oregon (11 percent of the state's population) were native-born Americans who had at least one immigrant parent.⁴
